Begin Log

I am so far behind on my TV viewing that it is a travesty. I have done the one thing that I needed to. I have caught up by binge watching the second season of "Discovery." Wow! Please stop reading if you have not finished watching it as spoilers will follow soon. Let me point out for those that do not have CBS All Access, that I have previously stated that I am more than willing to get together for watch parties to binge watch the show. I can easily rewatch this second season.

SPOILERS

Engineer Jet Reno is a great addition to the crew as they really did not have a dynamic full time Engineering person once Stamets became to propulsion source and technically he was a sciences officer.

There were two major concern about cannon and this season for me. When they added Chris Pike to the mix, I was hard pressed to understand whether they were breaking cannon or not. Oddly, they were not. In the end they explained a lot more about Pike's back story prior to The Old Series. When we got Spock's half sister and this season when we got Spock, I again wondered how this would fit into cannon. It was worked in. In the end, they explained why it was previously unknown. Excellent writing. Finally, they had a lot of Section 31 in this season. Previously within Star Trek, it was a secret organization. Suddenly it was not, but we are set before it was secret. How can that be? They explained it very well. I's say this season pretty much explains everything we were concerned about quite well.

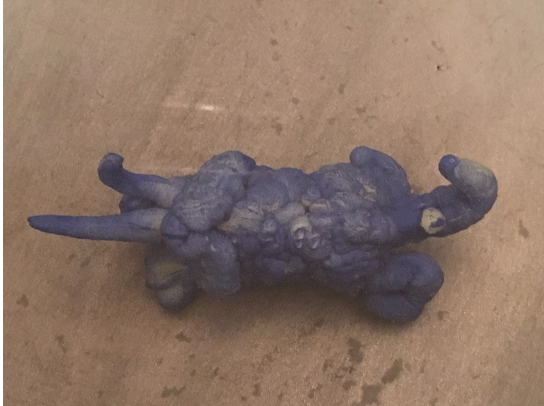

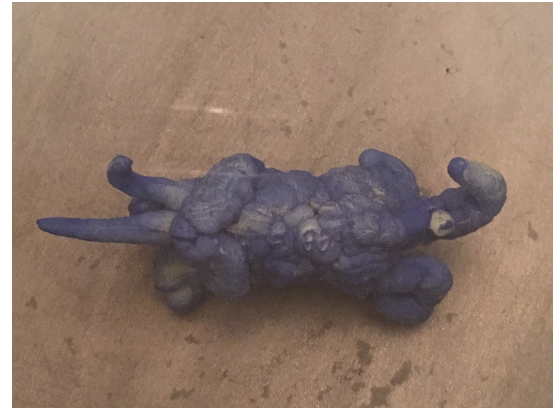

The rest of the season was an arc that was the season's center piece. I really enjoyed it. This season fully captured my interest in ways that the first season did not. I am so looking forward to what the writers come up with next.

The DINOSAUR CHALLENGE

Wiley had a MAGIC GROW dinosaur and to get it to swell it requires being covered in water for about a week. The things we do for our Cadets. This experiment went smoothly. The photo to the right is day two.

Day three's photo is to the left. It really did not look much bigger but it is starting to swell up nicely. The end result is supposed to wind up six times larger than the beginning product (see example at the bottom).

Day four is also to the left and below is day six. (All photos are below water except the day six photo).

Spectre Camera (iPhone) is a camera app that allows long exposures without all the fuss of a tripod and special equipment.

Mobile Passport allows you to load passport info to bypass having that document in the customs line. It also allows you to skip the customs line in some airports and boarder crossings.

Open Table (Thanks Rhonda) allows you to reserve a table at many restaurants and browse their menu.

Yummly recommends recipes based on dietary preferences and what is in you frog or cabinet.

JustWatch will track new shows and movies in your streaming apps and at the movies.

Spaceteam requires all players to come together to play. The app connects you and you play until you die (games last about 10 minutes) and then you are scored.

DUAL is a two player two phone game that allow you to shoot from phone to phone on bluetooth or wifi.

Edyn has spent a lot of time with me lately. We are like two peas in the same pod. We have so much in common. We both look good in purple. She appreciates a good meal and great snacks. She is a great fan of my scrambled eggs. Heck she is a great fan of almost everything I make. We may go on a food tour of Europe together one day with special stops in Tuscany.

Edyn and I like to dance. We have a special video in this article that shows her doing some sit down moves. She is getting her shoulder work in and moving her upper body to the music. Wiley won the dance off and that video is in the news letter somewhere but Edyn says she will take the prizes home next time.

We just had a sleepover and we did all the girl sleepover things. We need to have more of them. Signing off for now.

Add a new method to lower blood sugar levels

The most noteworthy 12 ways that a person can lower high blood sugar levels and reduce the risk of diabetes or diabetic episodes are well known and listed below but there is a final item that is new and may have as great an importance as the other 12.

1. Monitor blood sugar levels closely

Monitor blood sugar several times a day. Doing so will mean that blood sugar levels never get that high unexpectedly.

2. Reduce carbohydrate intake

Eating a low-carbohydrate, high-protein diet reduces blood sugar levels.

3. Eat the right carbohydrates

The two main kinds of carbohydrates — simple and complex — affect blood sugar levels differently. Avoid Simple carbohydrates that are mainly made up of sugar or are easily converted to sugar. Eat Complex carbohydrates which are made up of three or more sugars that are linked together as it takes the body longer to break them down.

4. Choose low glycemic index foods

The glycemic index measures and ranks various foods by how much they cause blood sugar levels to rise. Low glycemic index foods are those that score below 55 on the glycemic index. (sweet potatoes, quinoa, legumes, low-fat milk, leafy greens, non-starchy vegetables, nuts and seeds, meats, fish)

5. Increase dietary fiber intake

Soluble Fiber plays a significant role in blood sugar management by slowing down the rate that carbohydrates break down, and the rate that the body absorbs the resulting sugars. (vegetables, legumes, whole grains, fruit)

6. Maintain a healthy weight

Losing weight helps control blood sugar levels. Reducing weight by even only

7. Control portion size and percent

Overeating at a sitting can cause a spike in blood sugar. Portions are (meat=3 oz, deck of cards; cheese= 1 oz, 6 dice; rice or pasta= ½ cup; fruit= size of tennis ball; leafy greens = 1 cup raw or ½ cup cooked). The best percentages are 45% carbs, 25% fat, 30% protein.

8. Exercise regularly

Exercise has many benefits for people with diabetes, including weight loss and increased insulin sensitivity.

9. Hydrate

Drinking enough water prevents dehydration and also helps the kidneys remove extra sugar from the body in the urine. (People with diabetes should reduce alcohol intake to the equivalent of one drink per day for women and two for men.)

10. Herbal extracts / Supplements

Herbal extracts may have a positive effect on treating and controlling blood sugar levels. Supplements are often helpful for people who do not get enough of the nutrients from natural sources.

11. Manage stress

Stress hormones raise blood sugar levels.

12. Get enough sleep

Sleep helps a person reduce the amount of sugar in their blood. Getting adequate sleep each night is an excellent way to help keep blood sugar levels at a normal level.

13. Set strict meal times

A new study shows that eating all meals within a 9 hour window each day with more overnight fasting can help with weight loss and with lowering blood sugar.
